My Visual Pitch .com is hot, hot, hot! Three success stories, below...

(Are you sitting down?)

Quick.

What do these three projects all have in common?

- All have captured the attention of major A-list production companies.
- All were promoted directly to the industry through "In the Spotlight," MVP's weekly, targeted newsletter that introduces unsigned talent to the marketplace.
- All were produced by the MVP creative team (special props to Susan M. Lockwood, who wrote, scored, and edited each one).
- All of the above.

Yup. All of the above. Check it:

- Within one day of promoting "Kate & Co." on My Visual Pitch .com, writer Chad Gilkison emailed to let us know that Epiphany Pictures requested a copy of the script;
- "Threes" scribe Neil Socquet phoned in more good news, reporting that Escape Artists (who have a first-look with Sony Pictures) has expressed an interest in his project; and
- "Turnabout" writer Mike Scherer, who won first-place in our Pitch Your Niche! Summer

2007 Pitching contest wrote to let us know that his script is currently being rewritten with an assist from an A-list writer/producer (who asks to remain anonymous).

Not bad for a website that officially launched three months ago.

Want us to help you take your career to the next level? Here's how:

- 1) If you're already a member, upload your Visual Pitch or logline.
- 2) If you're not a member, register here, and then... upload your stuff.
- 3) If you'd like us to create a Visual Pitch for you, drop me a note.

Once I hear from you, we'll talk about your project, what you have in mind, and where you'd like to go. It's that easy. And, now through November 9, it's also free (that's a $295 offer).

Important stuff

Remember, this service is free only to members of the My Visual Pitch community, and applies only to those loglines that we are confident we can make into effective Visual Pitches.

If your logline is not chosen to be made into a Visual Pitch, don't worry. Your MVP subscription is good for six months, which means that your logline will still be viewable to industry pros who browse the site in search of the Next Big Thing.

I wish you every success,

Pamela Schott
